

My motivation to enter the IE Master in Business for Architecture and Design (MBArch) first came as a result of participating in competitions organized by the IE School of Architecture and Design in 2020 and 2021 for scholarships, which brought to my attention the opportunities offered by the course.

The program, I believe, has the ability to expose me to the economic factors at play in the delivery of architectural and design solutions, how to win work as a businessman and how to design depending on budget. As a budding entrepreneur and lover of my architecture career, the program can also boost my entrepreneurial skills and grant me a deeper understanding of all other business aspects of my profession.

I also understand that the blended format of the program favors distance learning by a greater percentage to the greater advantage of its students, running only for 15 months with 2 weeks of face-to-face learning in Amsterdam and Madrid. This is another advantageous aspect to me as it would enable me to proceed with my young career as I also fulfill my desire to further my studies.
