

To begin with, I consider the specific contest "Outstanding architecture and design awards" a great opportunity for all young architects like me and my colleague who worked on this project together. It's an opportunity to share the project we work so hard on at the end of the 5-year effort to complete our university studies. It is also an opportunity to see examples of colleagues work from different universities and countries towards the way of working and wonder on some new ideas.

During our academic studies we were given the opportunity to study very different and interesting topics around architecture. To move from one scale to another, to assume facts, to imagine a different reality. The size of the projects and challenges to study them into very short periods of time per semester made us not to have enough time to dive deep in every part of it.

Interior design has been the main example for me in school. There was always a priority to the architectural concept and the whole conceptual process of the project, the site and the landscape design resulting that was not enough time spent on the interior.

However, joining the workforce it soon was clear that the projects on board were entirely an interior architectural study. My insecurity in this area was overcome with a help of my manager who really wanted to pass on everything. However, still today, I don't feel a 100% comfortable with this part of the job. It's my belief that regardless of experience, additional knowledge is always a gain. So, I consider it important to expand my horizons in any of the three masters and I will be very happy to be given this opportunity.
